More money, more problems: Preparing for changes to wage and hour regulations

The long awaited revisions to federal wage and hour regulations are slated to be published in 2016. This presentation will provide employers an overview of the proposed changes and action items for employers to take now to prepare for the new regulations. In addition, we will address how the new regulations will affect employers in Wisconsin in light of existing state law that will continue to govern wage and hour issues following finalization of the federal regulations.

27th ANNUAL LABOR & EMPLOYMENT LAW UPDATE: SPRING 2016

Onboarding school: No employer left behind

This panel-based presentation will address the many potential traps that employers must navigate to avoid labor and employment law violations during the hiring process. The panel will also review sample documents, including an employment application, an offer letter, a restrictive covenant agreement and more, to discuss some of the most common mistakes employers make with these documents.
